HAWAII

1. The Hawaii Petition fails to provide any evidence to support the high threshold established by the FCC showing that rates are unjust or unreasonable or unjustly or unreasonably discriminatory and that CMRS is a replacement for landline telephone exchange service for a substantial portion of the telephone landline exchange service within the state.
2. Hawaii only articulated its concern that market-based rates which were originally approved may not now be reasonable. GTE has shown that rates have decreased. In addition, subsequent price changes render this concern moot.
3. Competitors have taken advantage of the regulatory process to delay or quash competitive initiatives. This intervention does not help the consumer, and, in fact validates the FCC's stated concern regarding tariff filings.
4. The Hawaii PUC infrastructure docket is primarily concerned with local exchange competition and does not address competition in the CMRS marketplace in any depth.
5. The Petition should be dismissed.
